NOVEMBER DIARY

From Italy to interior design: this month's highlights

A TUSCAN TREASURE

The five-star Timbers Resorts signature development of Castello di Casole offers an exciting, fractional-ownership holiday opportunity in the undulating Tuscan landscape. This centuries-old castle sits majestically on a hilltop in the heart of its 4,200-acre private estate surrounded by working vineyards and olive orchards, and has been exquisitely and sensitively transformed into a luxurious boutique hotel (opening spring 2012).

The undisputed gem in this stunning development is the spacious 3,350sq ft 'Bargagli Penthouse' with three ensuite bedrooms, stunning reception rooms, a private terrace with breathtaking views, and access to unrivalled hotel amenities. Fractional ownership interests (1/6th) are available at €750,000 providing four fixed and two planned holiday weeks, plus unlimited short-notice weeks. Further scattered farmhouses dotted around the estate are also available for whole or fractional ownership.

HIGH STYLE IN THE FRENCH ALPS

The uber luxurious, Savoyard-style chalet in Courchevel 1850m, pictured below, is deliciously glamorous in both location and accommodation – and just 10 minutes from the resort's private airport. It has six ensuite bedrooms, an enormous double-height reception room with central fireplace, and a triple-aspect balcony with breathtaking views. Sumptuous and sophisticated in design, La Grande Roche offers all the services worthy of a five-star hotel, including an indoor swimming pool, fully equipped gymnasium, a massage and treatment room and a state-of-the-art media/cinema room – not to mention the services of a personal chef, daily housekeeping and a driver. It's surely the ultimate Alpine getaway in Les Trois Vallées, with more than 150km of immaculate pistes for beginners and experts alike. Prices range from €37,000 to €86,000 per week (low to high season).

RENAISSANCE HOLIDAYS IN A RESTORED ITALIAN VILLA

An intriguing 16th-century villa, Castello di Brazzò in the Friuli-Venezia Giulia region of Italy, has been lovingly restored to accommodate 22 guests in seven ensuite bedrooms, a separate double bedroom, and a dormitory for six. A spacious elegance of rooms includes an impressive 100-metre-square Salone, galleried sitting room, two dining rooms, television room, and a games and fitness room.

The 90-acre parkland setting encompasses castle ruins and a 10th-century chapel, as well as a pool, tennis court, rose garden, croquet lawn and an ancient knot garden. Magically located for mountain activities in the Dolomites, the secluded beaches of the Istrian coast, and the captivating culture of Venice, it is within easy reach of three airports. Rental prices on application.

THE TRUE COLOURS OF HOUSE SELLING

The colour scheme you use in your house can affect how long it takes to sell your property – so suggests commissioned research by PrimeLocation.com, the premier property-search website. It proves that a boldly styled property interior with a strong, personal colour scheme can affect a future purchaser's choice of somewhere to live, and can therefore extend the time the property is left on the market. Regardless of colour scheme, ensuring your selling agent lists your property with PrimeLocation.com will enhance your exposure to the market place and therefore attract that unique purchaser who sees through the cosmetics of such matters.
